America's Great Danger

AN ENGLISH COMMENTARY.

Said an eminent English scientist recently:

"The danger that confronts the great American people to-day is not the possible adoption of a wrong financial policy for the nation, or the spread of socialism, or the impresse of corruption among public men.

All these are bad enough, to be sure, but they are as nothing compared to the terrible national disease—I had almost said national crime—of overwork. The mad rush for wealth is set at a killing pace, and thousands fall by the way every year.

You are likely to be one of the victime!

How do we know? Because it is the exception to find a man or woman of adult age in perfect health. Hervens Dicorders are apreading with fearful rapidity. Among the aumptoms, are—Backache, Biliconsuers, Cold Hands and Feet, Dinniness, Hot Flashes, Pluttering Sensation, Fainting, Headache, Hysteria, Irritability of the Heart, Melanchoty, Falling Memory, Palpitation, Rheumatism, Short Breath, Sieeplessness, Nervous Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, Fits, etc. Rev. C. A. Carroll, pastor First Baptist Church, Yellow Springs, O., writes as follows: "I have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for the past six months. I find it acts like a charm on the whole nervous system. I have not found its equal in giving immediate relief. Dr. Miles' little Nerve and Liver Pilis only used a trial and they will recommend themselves to be the best pills in the market." You are likely to be one of the victims!

"For five years I have suffered from Ner-rous Prostration, I was unable to work or sleep. The first dose of Dr. Hiles' Restora-tive Hervine gave me relief, and one thou-and dollars would not cover the good it has done me."—JOHN MINCHER, Younge

A Widely Prevalent Malady.

While it is perfectly true that swamp vapors, morning and evening mists along the banks of slow winding, turbid streams, and the effurium exhaled by the sun from moist and decaying vegetable beget malaria, it frequently breaks out where no such conditions exist. It is, in fact, a maiady widely prevalent, of which it is in many cases impossible to discover the origin. But though its causes are often obscure, the testimony, professional and public of the inhabitants of America and other lands, leave no reasonable doubt not only that Hostet-ter's Stomach Bitters uproors this tenacious disease when fully developed, but fortifies the system against its first attacks. Chilis and ferer, bilious intermittent, dutile agus and agus all yield to it allies. Liver trouble always present in majorial disorder, dyspep-sia, constipation and kidney complaint suc-cumb to the Bitters.

How a Tenderfoot, Against His Will Received a Loan.

Oh, dear! I am in such a state of mind and morals! What can poople think of me, if they ever find it out? It is simply awful!

It happened this way: I was just finishing my vacation in Colorado, and had started east over the Long's Peak & Middle Park railroad. In New York, where I reside, I am salesman at Lancey's dry goods store, on Seventh avecue, and I have the fullest confidence in my employers—I mean that they have the fullest confidence in me My wages are not very large, but they are sufficient.

I caught four trout and stopped in a sufficient.

I caught four trout and stopped in a real elegant hotel most of the four days that I was in Colorado. I bought a scalper's ticket each way and took only a value, so that I saved express charges on a trunk. I had calculated to spend two hundred dollars on the trip, and that was all that I took with me, but I got on so well that I made it for one bundred and sixty-five dollars. I had over fifty dollars in my pocket. I had over fifty dollars in my pocket, reached a little mining town—I remember distinctly it was called Bone Gulch—when a person boarded the train that I could see was not a miner, because his hands were not rough, and he was not a gambler, because he had no dismonds. He was rather a hard looking man and had what one would call a bad eye, and it was not pleasant to see the way he looked over the passengers, as if he were "sizing up" the amount of money represented in the caf.

My uneasiness was increase horror when a man behind me leaned forward and said in a low voice: "Did you notice the man who got on just now? Well, that's the celebrated Dop Riddles, the train robber. He's shot four men and stolen over $100,000. I shouldn't wonder if this crowd would be held up before the day is over. He's a cyclone when he's mad."

My fifty dollars! I thought of that the first thing and felt myself grow the first thing and felt myself grow pale. But the paleness increased until I could almost see it when the bandit lounged along the aisle of the car and stopped at my seat. He took my valise and threw it carelessly on the floor and sat down beside me. Then he said: "Hello, sonny, you look kind o' whitish around the gills. You need a bracer." As he put his hand behind him I came as near to fainting dead away se ever I did in my life; but it wasn't a revolver that time. It was wasn't a revolver that time. It was pistol." As he pulled out the cork the smell of whisky was almost over-powering. He put it under my nose and told me to drink it. Now, I dislike whisky very much and so I turned my head. At that he said, quite gruffly: "Here, d-n it, drink it." And as I took a small "snifter" (he called it that) out of the flask, he thumped me violently on the back, intending that as encouragement. Between the strangling of the whisky and the blow on the back I did not get my breath again for some

CALLED ME A MILK-AND-WATER CUSS. seconds. But he went on: "You'll be all right in a little while." Well, as a matter of fact, it did brace me up so that I could sit up a little straighter, but my voice was still weak and I may as well own that I was horribly frightened. He turned to me again and asked: "Going far east?"

I told him that I was bound for New "Any friends to see you through, in "No."

"Got any money?"
At that I realized what his object was. I doubtless looked a little clean-er and better dressed than some of the others on the train, so that he suspected me of having funds, knew that I was not likely to make much of a resistance and would begin his robberies with me. I expected at every instant to hear him shout: "Hands up!" and see him "cover" the whole car with a brace of pistols. I stammered: "Oh, sir, if it is possible-"

"There, go easy. Wait till you get your wind," said he. I waited, and gradually an idea dawned in my mind. I would repre-sent to him that I had lost my money and would turn the tables on him, or at least forestall his demands, by asking him to lend me a couple of dollars. I would pretend that I did not suspect him of being a robber, and he would therefore overlook me when he began to shoot the passengers.

"The fact is, sir," I stammered, "I had a little money when I came out, but-"I see. What was it? Mines? Road agents? Real estate sharps?" "It was hotels, I think, as much as anything, but-"

"Right you are. They're a set of pirates in those places, and deserve to be skinned. I am a little of a pirate myself, but I ain't no landlord, you bet. And you ain't got no money?"

I feit in my pocket. There were say.

oral bills there, but I did not draw them out. I produced two nichels.

"Great Scott! Are you down to that? Got your ticket through? Eh? As far as Omaha? Then you'm all right. Just, you sit still and I'll fir you."

Fix me! Was he going to shoot or stab me for not having more money? Did he want my ticket to Guaha? I shrunk down in my seat until I ast on my shoulder blades, for he was rising and throwing open his coul. He spet out some tobacco juice and cleared his throat. Then he mid: "Gente, O, gente?"

his throat. Then he mid: "Gents, O, gents!"

It was a queer way to begin, and I held my breath. As soon as he sew that he had the eyes of everybody, he went on: "Gents, my seat pardner here is a tenderfoot gettin' back east. He ain't well and be agene dead broke. Sit up, son, and let 'em see how solemn you look. There ain't only ten cents and a ticket in his outsit, berrin' his grip, and I resices he don't want to hock his shirts to get home. Gents, if he was a hustler, like most of us are, and used to wearin' our kind of clothes and puttin' up with our kind of grub, none of us wouldn't pay no attention to him, but a greenhorn in the mountains has got everything agen him. What do you say now, gents, to takin' up a collection? Hush, son, it is all reg'lar. 'Tain't no time fer pride. I'm goin' to use my hat for a bank, and here's a V to start with, and I hope I don't hear no chink of silver while the hat's passing."

don't hear no chink of silver while the hat's passing."

With that he went to the end of the aisle and began to walk slowly back, collecting money, for me! If I had been pale before I am sure that I was crimson now, away down to my feet. What a situation! I, who come of one of the most respectable Presbyterian families in Sussex county, New Jersey, who never accepted a charity in my life, to be begged for, in this public manner, and by a highwayman—it was awful! When Mr. Dop Riddles had come half way along the car and put his hat under the chin of a young woman—such a pretty little lady that I had resolved to have a little bit of a flirtation with her, as soon as I could get around to it—when he did that I could not endure it, but cried: "Oh, don't!" not endure it, but cried: "Oh, don't!"

and put my hands before my face.

"You're right, stranger," said Mr.
Riddles. "Thar's men enough without. Take back your fifteen cents, miss. And remember, gents, no silver taken."

My little explosion of shame they took for gallantry, and some of the men who had coin in their hands put it back in their pockets and drew out Transacts a General Banking Business Loan hills instead. It seemed to me that everybody gave something, perhaps on account of Mr. Riddles' bad eye. After he had gone through the car, and made me wish that I could go through the floor, he called out: "Stay right where you are, son. I'm goin' to work the next car."

It was a consolation when evening came on and the cargrewdim, because I could not look my fellow travelers in the face while the lights were up. Mr. Riddles stayed by me constantly, and that evening he appalled me by saying that he would not stop over at Pueblo, as he had intended, but would go straight on to Omaha, for he wasn't going to see a man suffer when he was in trouble. Still, I don't know what I should have done without him, in my state of mind. He marched me in to my meals; made me go to bed when it was time; bought papers and oranges for me, and did the only thinking that was done between us. I had hoped there would be some way of getting him to take part of the plunder, but he said that he had some already, and besides, there wasn't enough to play poker for. He told one of the passengers that I was a harmless, milk-andwater sort of cuss, but that he had no doubt my parents would be glad to see

He did allow me to buy a bottle of champagne in Omaha, and drank all of it, except one glass, as well as the whole of another bottle that he insisted whole of another bottle that he insisted on getting in order to treat me, and left me at the station, thinking better of me. We shook hands very cordially and I gave him a wrong address and told him that if he ever came to New York I should be delighted to see him. Wall, here I am. with $148.55 that does not belong to me, and no way, that I see, to get it back to its owners. Of all the bandits I ever heard of, Mr. Dop Riddles is the worst.
